You are looking for a disk with a drive letter of "B". These floppy disks are often used for data storage. For most PCs, you can use a flash drive (which has a 2.5" or larger capacity). However, if your computer is based on an earlier type of system (like a PC based on the PC-9800), consider upgrading to the latest model or making your own bootable flash drive.. B. the PDE files with the decryption keys C. the decrypted PDE files Note: The decryption was not complete and did not contain the encryption. I will be sending out more and more PDE files later on, to test on actual computers.
